

Opening for Head of Upper School

Columbus School for Girls
Columbus, OH

Fall 2011

Columbus School for Girls (CSG), located in Columbus Ohio, has announced its search for an Upper School Head whose responsibilities will begin with the 2011 – 2012 school year. Founded in 1898, CSG is an independent, college preparatory day school with a total enrollment of 615 girls.

The Head of Upper School is responsible for day-to-day operation in grades nine through 12 which include approximately 235 students and 27 faculty members. Classes are small, ranging from 8 to 17 students. All classes are college preparatory, and there are AP classes in every discipline.

Among needed qualifications, the successful candidate must present strong academic credentials, teaching experience at the upper grade levels, a visible commitment to single-sex education for girls, and administrative/leadership experience in a similar independent school. Columbus School for Girls expects to announce its Upper School Head appointment by late March 2011.
